

GEORGE W. BROWN, WIDOW OF
JAMES COX.

MARCH 5, 1840.

Read, and laid upon the table.

Mr. DOAN, from the Committee on Invalid Pensions, submitted the following

REPORT :

The Committee on Invalid Pensions, to whom was referred the petition of James Cox, beg leave to report :

The petitioner, James Cox, represents that he was injured by a fall through the hatches of the frigate Constitution, at the Washington navy yard, in 1803, while in the discharge of his duty as a private in the marine corps in the service of the United States ; that he was discharged, in consequence of said injury, before the expiration of the time for which he had enlisted.

Andrew Forrest is sworn before James Marshall, a justice of the peace for this District. He testifies that James Cox enlisted in September, 1802, at Washington, for three years, and that he was discharged in 1804 ; but does not state the cause of his discharge.

Mary Galaway is sworn before John Clark, a justice of the peace for this District. She swears that she has been well acquainted with James Cox from her infancy ; that he enlisted at the navy yard in or about the year 1802, in the marine corps ; was put on board the frigate Constitution ; that he fell while in the discharge of his duty, and was taken to the hospital, and, after remaining there some time, was discharged in consequence of his inability to perform duty, arising from the injury he received by the fall on board the Constitution.

J. S. Messersmith, acting surgeon of United States navy, certifies that he had carefully examined James Cox, and rates his disability at one-eighth, caused by a partial immobility of the elbow-joint.

The committee are of opinion that the case is not sufficiently made out, and report adversely to the prayer of the petitioner.

Blair & Rives, printers.

JAMES COX

MARCH 5, 1840.

Read, and laid upon the table.

Mr. Doak, from the Committee on Invalid Pensions, submitted the following

REPORT

The Committee on Invalid Pensions, to whom was referred the petition of James Cox, beg leave to report:

The petitioner, James Cox, represents that he was injured by a fall through the hatch of the frigate Constitution, at the Washington navy yard, in 1803, while in the discharge of his duty as a private in the marine corps in the service of the United States; that he was discharged, in consequence of said injury, before the expiration of the time for which he had enlisted.

Andrew Forrest is sworn before James Marshall, a justice of the peace for this District. He testifies that James Cox enlisted in September, 1802, at Washington, for three years, and that he was discharged in 1804; and does not state the cause of his discharge.

Mary Galaway is sworn before John Clark, a justice of the peace for this District. She swears that she has been well acquainted with James Cox from her infancy; that he enlisted at the navy yard in or about the year 1802, in the marine corps; was put on board the frigate Constitution; that he fell while in the discharge of his duty, and was taken to the hospital, and, after remaining there some time, was discharged in consequence of his inability to perform duty, arising from the injury he received by the fall on board the Constitution.

J. S. Messersmith, acting surgeon of United States navy, certifies that he had carefully examined James Cox, and rates his disability at one-eighth, caused by a partial immobility of the elbow joint.

The committee are of opinion that the case is not sufficiently made out, and report adversely to the prayer of the petitioner.

Wm. A. Rice printer.